Summary

Using Selenium, we automated login tests for both valid and invalid credentials. The test script interacted with the login page, inputted data, and verified the output (success message or error). While Selenium requires manual script creation, it offers flexibility. AI-powered tools like Testim.io go further by automatically detecting changes in UI, suggesting locator updates, and providing visual test feedback, making them more resilient and faster to maintain than traditional Selenium tests.